

Where the money is: Akron's richest and poorest

About the figures: The Beacon Journal's division of Akron into 21 neighborhoods generally follows the work of the city Planning Department and Summit County Historical Society. Boundaries were modified where necessary to follow Census block groups.

We calculated statistics for each neighborhood by adding numbers from the block groups and adjusting the totals to compensate for differences in the number of households. Comparisons to the 1990 Census took into account minor changes made to the boundaries of the block groups.
