

4TH ANNUAL LEWIS MUMFORD LECTURE

“Jim Crow's Last Stand: Civil Rights in the Suburban North”

by

Thomas Sugrue
University of Pennsylvania

Monday, April 28, 2003 at 3:30 pm
Campus Center, Assembly Hall University at Albany

THOMAS J. SUGRUE is Bicentennial Class of 1940 Professor of History and Sociology. He is author of The Origins of the Urban Crisis (Princeton University Press, 1997), a study of race and inequality in postwar Detroit which won the 1998 Bancroft Prize in History. He is co-editor of W.E.B. DuBois, Race, and the City, with Michael B. Katz, (University of Pennsylvania Press, 1998.) He has also published many scholarly articles on a wide range of topics including deindustrialization, race and labor, liberalism and grassroots conservatism, the history of America in the 1950s, poverty and public policy, and affirmative action.

Sugrue's current research interests include the history of civil rights politics in the urban north, the US in the 1960s, and liberalism and anti-liberalism from the 1930s to the present. He is also writing a general history of twentieth-century America with Glenda Gilmore of Yale University.

(Reception Immediately Following)

